

Alison Short

Project Manager, Facility Management

I have had the privilege of knowing Anna Galluzzo for many years, and her journey in construction is truly inspirational. With over 30 years of experience in an industry historically dominated by men, Anna consistently breaks barriers and sets new standards for excellence. Currently serving as the head of construction for McDonald's in Victoria, Western Australia, and South Australia, she leads with passion, vision, and unwavering commitment.

Anna's outstanding career is further enriched by her academic pursuits as an architect, builder, and a PhD candidate in Law. Despite the challenges of being a woman in a male-dominated field, she has shown remarkable resilience and determination, always pushing forward no matter the obstacle. Her amazing work hasn't gone unnoticed she has been nominated by Master Builders as Woman of the Year—a testament to her exceptional contributions.

Beyond her professional achievements, Anna is an incredible mentor and leader. She has personally inspired and encouraged me to push harder and pursue success in every aspect of my career. Her guidance embodies the spirit of women in construction, proving that dedication, innovation, and perseverance can overcome any challenge.

This nomination celebrates Anna not only for her remarkable accomplishments but also for her role as a beacon of inspiration for all of us striving to make a mark in the industry. Her story is a powerful reminder that hard work and passion can transform challenges into triumphs, making her a true role model on this International Women's Day.